CARDIGAN WELSH CORGI

Official UKC Breed Standard
Revised January 1, 2008

The goals and purposes of this breed standard include:
to furnish guidelines for breeders who wish to maintain the quality of their breed and to improve it; to advance
this breed to a state of similarity throughout the world;
and to act as a guide for judges.

Breeders and judges have the responsibility to avoid any conditions or exaggerations that are detrimental to the health, welfare, essence and soundness of this breed, and must take the responsibility to see that these are not perpetuated.

Any departure from the following should be considered a fault, and the seriousness with which the fault should be regarded should be in exact proportion to its degree and its effect upon the health and welfare of the dog and on the dog’s ability to perform its traditional work.

HISTORY
The Cardigan is one of two Welsh Corgi breeds, the other being the Pembroke. Several theories exist regarding the origin of these very old breeds, one being that they were brought to Wales by the Celts. Another theory is that they are descended from the Swedish Vallhunds, which were crossed with the local Welsh herding dogs. The Cardigan is a herding dog, originally used to drive cattle to pasture.

The Cardigan Welsh Corgi was recognized by the United Kennel Club in 1959.

GENERAL APPEARANCE
The general impression of a Cardigan Welsh Corgi is that of an intelligent, handsome, powerful, sturdily-built, small dog that is long in proportion to his height. He has a fox-like brush that is carried in line with his body.

CHARACTERISTICS
Cardigans are even tempered, loyal, affectionate and adaptable. They are alert and watchful, yet friendly.

HEAD
The head is foxy in shape and appearance, with ears that are rather large in proportion to the size of the dog.

SKULL - Wide and flat between the ears, tapering in width towards the eyes. It is slightly rounded above the eyes. There is a moderate stop.

MUZZLE - The muzzle tapers moderately towards the nose, which projects slightly beyond the end of the muzzle, so that the foreface does not end in an abrupt wedge shape. The length of the muzzle is less than half the length of the entire head. The underjaw is clean and strong but not prominent.

TEETH - A full complement of strong, regular, white teeth meet in a scissors bite, with the inner side of the upper incisors fitting closely over the outer side of the lower incisors.

Serious Faults: Overshot, undershot, or wry bite.

EYES - The medium size eyes are wide set and have distinct corners and dark rims. Eye color is clear and dark, in harmony with the coat color. Blue eyes (which includes partially blue eyes and one dark and one blue eye), are permissible only in blue merles.

Faults: Bulging eyes.

Disqualifications: Blue eyes, or partially blue eyes, in any coat color other than blue merles.

NOSE - The nose is black. In blue merles, a butterfly nose is tolerated, with a black nose being preferred.

Disqualification: Nose color other than black, except for a butterfly nose on a blue merle dog.

EARS - The large, prominent ears are slightly rounded at the tip, wide at the base and have good strong leather.
They are carried erect, sloping slightly forward when alert. When the ears are erect, the tips are slightly wide of a straight line drawn from the tip of the nose through the center of the eye. The ears are set well back so that they can be laid flat against the neck.

Serious Faults: Small and/or pointed ears.

Disqualification: Drop ears after six months of age.

NECK
The clean, moderately long, muscular neck is well set on, fitting cleanly into sloping shoulders.

FOREQUARTERS
The long, well-laid-back scapula (shoulder blade) meets the humerus (upper arm) at an approximate right angle,
the humerus and scapula being nearly the same length.
The elbows are held close to the body.
FORELEGS - The front legs are short, but keep the body clear of the ground. They are heavy in bone. The forearms are slightly bowed so that they mold around the chest. The feet turn out slightly.
Serious Faults: Bone so heavy as to appear coarse and reduce agility. Straight front. Fiddle front. Knuckling over.

BODY
The moderately broad chest has a prominent breastbone and a deep brisket that is well let down between the forelegs. The well-sprung ribs extend well back. The topline is level. The loin is strong and short. The croup is slightly sloped downward to where it meets the base of the tail. There is a moderate tuck-up, with a well-defined waist.

HINDQUARTERS
Strong and well angulated, with muscular thighs and second thighs.

HIND LEGS - Short, with strong bone all the way down to the feet. When standing, the rear pasterns are parallel to one another viewed from the rear, and perpendicular to the ground when viewed from the side.

FEET
Round and tight, rather large. Well padded.
Serious Fault: Splayed toes.

TAIL
The long, fox-like tail is low set and reached to the ground, or nearly so. It is carried low when the dog is standing, and may be lifted a little above the body when the dog is moving. Never carried curled over the back.
Serious Fault: High tail set. Tail curled over the back.

COAT
Short or medium in length, with hard texture of outer coat and good undercoat. The coat should be weather proof. A straight coat is preferred. The correct coat forms a slight ruff around the neck, pants on the back of the hind legs, and brush on the tail. The Cardigan Welsh Corgi is shown in natural condition. No trimming is permitted except to tidy the feet and, if desired, to remove the whiskers.
Serious Faults: Wiry, curly or silky outer coat. Uniform length coats. Overly short and/or flat coats.
Very Serious Fault: Distinctly long coat. Fluffy coat.

COLOR
Acceptable coat colors include: all shades of red, sable and brindle; black, with or without tan or brindle points; and blue merle (black and gray marbled), with or without tan or brindle points. No one color is preferred over any of the others. White markings may found on the legs, chest, neck (either in or as part of a collar), muzzle, underparts, as a blaze on the face, and on the tip of the tail, but white should not predominate.
Very Serious Fault: Predominant white on the head.
Disqualifications: Any coat color other than those specified. Body color predominantly white. Albinism.

SIZE & WEIGHT
Overall balance is more important than absolute sizes. When standing naturally, dogs and bitches range from 10½ to 12½ inches, measured at the withers. The ideal length to height ratio is 1.8:1 when measuring from the breastbone to the buttocks and the withers to the ground. The ideal weight range for dogs in working condition is from 30 to 38 pounds; for bitches is from 25 to 34 pounds.

GAIT
Free, smooth, effortless movement is of utmost importance. When viewed from the side, at a trot, the forelegs reach well forward without too much lift. The hind legs reach well under the body, moving in line with the forelegs, in one continuous motion. They drive powerfully behind, well beyond the set of the tail. The hocks turn neither in nor out.
When viewed from the front, the legs do not move in exact parallel planes; they incline slightly inward to compensate for the characteristic shortness of the legs and chest width. The feet travel parallel to the line of motion with no tendency to swing out, cross over or interfere.
Serious Faults: Short, choppy movement. Rolling or high stepping gait. Close, or overly wide coming or going.

DISQUALIFICATIONS
(A dog with a Disqualification must not be considered for placement in a conformation event, and must be reported to UKC.)
Unilateral or bilateral cryptorchid.
Viciousness or extreme shyness.
Nose color other than black, except for a butterfly nose on a blue merle dog.
Drop ears after six months of age.
Blue eyes, or partially blue eyes, in any coat color other than blue merles.
Any coat color other than those specified. Body color predominantly white. Albinism.
